

Protection of rights of aggrieved persons

An aggrieved person in criminal proceedings is a person who suffered bodily harm, damage on property or non-material harm, or a person at the expense of which the perpetrator enriched himself by the criminal offense. The aggrieved person may be granted rights arising out of his position in criminal proceedings... read more

Protection of children

The law grants special (increased) protection to children, whether it is a child or juvenile as a perpetrator of a crime, or a child as an aggrieved person (victim) of crime. This approach takes into account the unfinished mental, physical and social development of such persons... read more

Protection of Victims of Crime
